Consequences of withdrawal from the purchase contract

In the event of withdrawal from the contract, the buyer will be refunded all payments he paid in connection with the conclusion of the purchase contract, namely the purchase price, including the cost of delivery of goods. This does not apply to additional costs if the buyer has chosen a different type of delivery, such as the cheapest standard delivery method offered by the seller, nor to the cost of ancillary services if they were the subject of the contract and were fully provided. Payments will be returned to the buyer without undue delay and no later than 14 days from the date of delivery of the notice of withdrawal to the seller.

Payment will be made by bank transfer to the buyer's bank account or PayPal account, without charging any additional fees.

Payment for the purchased goods will be paid to the buyer after delivery of the returned goods back to the seller's address. The buyer is obliged to send the goods to the seller without undue delay at the latest within 14 days from the date of exercising the right of withdrawal from the purchase contract. The direct cost of returning the goods is borne by the buyer.

Notice!

Goods can only be returned in undamaged condition. The buyer is therefore obliged to store all packaging and accessories belonging to the purchased goods, including labels and stickers. In the event of withdrawal from the contract, the buyer is responsible for any diminished value of the goods as a result of handling in the period from its delivery until the moment of its return in a way other than that necessary to determine the nature, properties and functionality of the goods.
